- Your portfolio should feature examples of research and the development of your ideas and projects – this should be highly presentable and well organised. It may be useful to arrange your work into themes, styles or chronological order. This will demonstrate good organisational skills and your own artistic awareness.
- It should exhibit your creative journey, thinking processes and individual personality, so we can assess your potential. It's also important to show both your inspirations and aspirations, as your portfolio should say a lot about you and your creative identity, as well as the course you're applying for.
- Documenting the development of your ideas in a sketchbook is a great way to show us how you approached the task of creating your work, allowing us to gain insight into your creative thought processes and approach to your subject, and demonstrating a clear rationale.
- Make sure your portfolio is well presented. Remember, our tutors will only have a short amount of time to look through each portfolio, so you need to organise your work intelligently. Put some of your most attention grabbing and interesting work at the front and lead the viewer through your journey by exhibiting pieces of work that showcase a variety of skills, materials, techniques and influences this might include paintings, drawings, photography, digital pieces, storyboards, animation images or written work. And be sure to end your portfolio with the rest of your strongest work, so we're left feeling excited about your talent. Highlight your favourite pieces too, and indicate what or who inspires you.

这节课提供两个 pathway , 一个是 Image Making , 另一个是 Critical Computing

Image Making 需要作品集,Critical Computing 不需要作品集。

- Applicants to Pathway 2 (Image Making) need to demonstrate the relevant experience and expertise via the submission of a portfolio of their creative work (still and/or moving image, using any techniques including some digital ones). When submitting your application, please also submit (upload under 'additional') an example of your recent work in a related field, or include links to a page hosting that work. Failing which, please post an example of that work to: Admissions Office, Goldsmiths, New Cross, London SE14 6NW, UK. Please make sure you include your application reference number (which you will receive when you enter your online application) and the MA degree title.
- Applicants to Pathway 3 (Critical Computing) don't need to submit a portfolio. No advanced knowledge of computing is required of them. However, they are requested to explain in their personal statement their interest in Pathway 3, the state of their current technical knowledge and their wider experience with technology and computing so far, as practitioners and/or users. These applicants will also need a relevant first degree as above.

- You must submit a portfolio as part of your application. Your portfolio should be a single PDF file. Please provide examples of your creative design and/or technology work to demonstrate your aptitude and commitment to working in this area, especially if your previous study is not primarily design and/or technology focused.
- Examples of work can include images of your design work (e.g. illustration, graphic design, installations etc.), stills from and links to examples of your animations and motion graphics, application or website design and coding and other examples of interactive media. Make it clear which parts of the work you are responsible for and outline the context, processes and design thinking involved in producing the work.
